Clean Campus Drive Starts Today

PLEASE DON'T DO THIS—Associated Men Students will be crusading this week to curb this practice of cutting across lawns. (Photo by Orven Hudgens)

"Clean-up the campus, keep off the grass" drive begins this week, reported Murlon Bowman, chairman, Las Vegas, Nev.

This is a drive held once each quarter sponsored by the Associated Men Students council in an effort to make the students of Brigham Young University more conscious of their part in keeping our campus a place of which to be proud, Bowman said.

"During the year unthinking students cut across the lawns making snow trails that others follow, which, when the snow melts, leaves scars on the lawns that do not disappear until after school is out."

Other areas stressed by Bowman was the litter on the path between Heritage Halls and the North Building and private lawns used for short-cuts to students going to lower campus.

Don Cross, Elgin, Ill., is the Central Publicity committee, is helping Bowman in student education of the drive's purpose. Other committee members include: Carole Carruth, Las Vegas, Nev., and Jerry Gritsiha, Long Beach, Calif.

More Student Seats . . .

Faculty Ticket Distribution Change Given Approval by Administration

A NEW PLAN for issuing basketball tickets to faculty members has been adopted for the coming season.

Also included is a decision to change faculty seating arrangements and to give faculty members an exclusive entrance to the Smith Fieldhouse.

The plan, which has been approved by Pres. Harvey L. Taylor, assistant to Pres. Ernest L. Wilkinson, was presented at a faculty meeting Thursday by Dean Milton F. Hartvigsen of Physical and Health Education and Athletics.

UNDER THE new plan, faculty and staff members must pick up their basketball tickets at the door just before the game, rather than obtaining them several days ahead of time, as has been the practice.

New seating also calls for section GG (northwest corner) to be reserved for faculty seating instead of LL (southwest corner) as was the case previously.

Switch was made, according to Dr. Edwin R. Kimball, athletic director, to make the faculty section more easily accessible from the northwest door, which will be designated as faculty entrance.

REASON FOR delaying distribution of faculty tickets until game night, according to Athletic Council members, is to cut down on the number of vacant seats left by those who obtain tickets during the week and don't attend the game.

Tickets in faculty sections not taken by 7:55 on game night will be turned to student use and then to the public for sale, Dr. Kimball said.

Seats made available to students as a result of the switch include 10 rows in the center of the student seating sections (KK, HH) which have been reserved for the faculty.

SECTIONS AA, BB, and CC (along north side) are reserved for student and faculty overflow. Sections R and S and T and U, along the east wall of the fieldhouse, have also been reserved for student and faculty use.

New plan adopted was result of an investigating committee, chairmanned by Dr. Kimball, which investigated ticket issuing and seating practices and made recommendations to the Athletic Council.

The Athletic Council, under the chairmanship of Dr. Wayne B. Hales, approved the recommendations and presented them to Dean Hartvigsen, who secured administration approval and presented it to the faculty at a Thursday meeting.

Student Stifles Arson Attempt By Berlin Philharmonic Attender

A University of Utah student was apprehended Thursday evening after an attempt to set fire to the White Key block Y at the north-east entrance to the Smith Fieldhouse.

The Utah student attempted to start the fire during the Berlin Philharmonic concert.

He was standing with four other men outside the entrance. He put a lighted cigarette into a book of matches and threw it on the paper-napkin structure, according to Fred Williams, a Brigham Young University student who was on ambulance duty by the structure at the time and saw the act.

Williams followed the Utah students when they returned to their seats, and then went for the Campus Security Police.

Realizing that the one man had been seen attempting to set the fire, all of the men tried to leave. Williams then called for help and blocked all the exits.

The men were held until the Security Police arrived.

Charges are pending until the disposition of the case is determined.

Preferred Dates Delayed

Because of the Veteran's Day Holiday Monday, the post office will be closed and Preference Ball invitations will not be delivered as scheduled, according to Luana Schow, chairman.

Deadline for calling preference dates is Thursday, instead of Wednesday, Miss Schow said.

AWS Council Picks Education Majors As October Coeds

Coeds of the Month for October chosen by Associated Women Students are Ellen Claire Weaver, Chicago, Ill., and Stana Brennan, Walla Walla, Wash., both of the Education Department.

This AWS program will be continued throughout the year, choosing two coeds each month, from a different department, according to Pat Lee, Vernal, chairman.

Purpose behind the idea is to honor the outstanding coeds of Brigham Young University and make their accomplishments known to the studentbody.

Both women chosen for October are seniors.

Activity Schedule Asked For IOC Meet Tonight

Inter-Organization Council meeting will be held Monday at 7 p.m. in 270 Eyring Science Center.

It is requested that any organization not having yet submitted an activity schedule for the quarter send this item with their representative.

Teacher Promotion Slated This Week Throughout Nation

American Education Week will be observed throughout the country Monday through Friday.

It is promoted here at Brigham Young University by the Student Education Association and the Education Department. The purpose of this week is to get the general public interested in teaching and education problems.

The theme for this year is "Schools for a Free America." Displays will be placed in the McKay Building and in Provo stores. Articles also be placed in all campus buildings.

Broadcasting concerning the week's activities will be given over KOVO and other Provo stations by the Speech Department.

The State SEA President, Grant Misbach, will speak at Thursday's assembly.

Vacancies Filled In Honor Council

Honor Council vacancies have been filled, according to council chairman, Howard Larsen.

New counselors are Jewel Ann Spilsbury, graduate student, Salt Lake City; Dorothy J. Kenison, senior, Los Angeles, Calif.; John Mitsen, junior, Los Angeles, Calif.; Patricia K. Brighton, freshman, Chicago, Ill.; David Brian Galbraith, freshman, Raymond, Alta., Canada, and Vanja Yorgason, freshman, Ogden.

10 Year Milestone Observed Friday By Opera Workers

Members of the Opera Workshop and their honored guests attended the tenth anniversary banquet of the organization Friday.

Built around the theme, "Decade of Songs," the banquet was held in the Smith Ballroom.

Honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Mensel, Dr. and Mrs. John R. Halliday, Dean and Mrs. Gerrit de Jong and President and Mrs. Harvey L. Taylor.

Opera Workshop is the largest university-supported group of its kind in the country. As a touring organization they have visited Canada and the western United States.

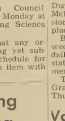
'1984' Supplies Background For Sociologist's Lecture

Students and public are invited to hear a lecture by Prof. Elmer Barnes, noted figure in history and sociology, Monday.

Subject of his talk will be "Are We Moving Toward '1984'" and will cover some controversial issues that were first brought out by author George Orwell in his novel "1984".

Barnes has had experience in a variety of fields. For 11 years he was a senior editor for the Scripps - Howard newspapers. He has also been a consultant in Prison Industries, the War Production Board, the Federal Bureau of Prisons, the Department of Justice and other government organizations.



Barnes

A few of the issues that Barnes plans to discuss are the possibility of a completely regimented state, the perpetual threat of war, and of completely unrestrained conversation and even thought.

The lectures will be presented at 167 McKay Building at 8 p.m.

In the literary field, Barnes has written or shared authorship of some 48 books and approximately 200 professional and popular articles concerning history and sociology.

After touring and lecturing in numerous foreign countries he was highly commended by press representatives of those areas.

Barnes has studied at Syracuse University and Columbia University. He has taught at Syracuse University, Clark University, Smith College, Amherst, Columbia University, Temple, College and Washington State College.

IK's to Aid Hubcap Engraving In Lot Next to North Building

Hubcap engraving service for students begins Monday morning and extends through Tuesday.

The project, slated to reduce the number of stolen hubcaps from automobiles on campus, is under the direction of Ronald Peterson, Los Altos, Calif.

Engraving will be done between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday and Tuesday in the vacant lot north of the North Building adjacent to the Manual Arts Building.

Intercollegiate Knights, service unit, is supplying two students to operate the engraving tools, Peterson said.

Owners' registration numbers will be inscribed on each hubcap. Registration slips must be brought with the caps, Peterson warned.

Those taking advantage of the service should bring their hubcaps and registration slip to the engraving table.

CATASTROPHE NARROWLY AVERTED??

Thursday night at the Berlin Philharmonic concert some one, as a prank, conspired to set fire to an extremely inflammable paper napkin "Y" that was sitting about 20 feet outside the main entrance to the Smith Fieldhouse.

Aside from being a very childish stunt, the trick could easily have led to a catastrophic stampede in which no one would have been burned, but someone may very well have been crushed.

The sight of a flash of flame, which paper napkins make when set afire, by several thousand people has proven in the past to lead to catastrophe.

A panic-stricken rush to the other doors of the fieldhouse by people who think themselves trapped by flames could mean death or injury to hundreds.

Fortunately, the would-be arsonist was observed in his sneaky action and the plot was nipped in the bud by an alert Brigham Young University student.

This occurrence, however, helps build the case for the necessity of police protection.

Ninety-nine of 100 people may be mature enough and have good judgement enough that they would never stoop to such a trick, but that extra person is enough to make life unhappy for many people.

It is to be hoped that the ratio of maturity vs prankishness is high in favor of maturity at BYU.

The Week In Review . . .

Ike Election Upheaval Overshadows Battle

by James Lee

WASHINGTON (INS) — A political upheaval touched off by three little words—"We like Ike"—surged and grew inside the voting booths until it became an Eisenhower avalanche.

Citadels of Democratic strength crumbled under the overwhelming onslaught. The Republican president was reelected by the astonishing margin of 457 electoral votes in 41 states to 74 in seven states for Adlai E. Stevenson.

Ike not only cracked the solid South again, but actually added another southern state, Louisiana, to the four he won in '52. He triumphed in many other areas long considered Democratic.

HIS POPULAR vote exceeded Stevenson's by nearly 10 million, up three million from his popularity four years ago. The President's popular name from all segments of the American electorate.

Yet the Ike victory, stupendous though its proportions were, could not give his party control of Congress. Tickets were split as never before.

The Democrats in spite of some staggering defeats held their 49-47 edge in the Senate. The division in the House remained about the same as in the 84th Congress, in which the Democrats had a 232-203 advantage.

Only once before in American history—when Zacarary Tayler was elected in 1884—had a winning president failed to carry at least one house of congress with him.

IKE, AS modest in political victory as he was in martial triumph, pledged ceaseless efforts to achieve world peace and called a bipartisan conference of congressional leaders to help him chart U. S. policy in the Middle East crisis.

With Ike barred by law from a third term, both parties started out thinking about 1960. Important in Republican thoughts was Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who has proved himself as an immensely formidable campaigner.

Democrats began mulling over the possibilities inherent in the name of Stevenson's running mate, Sen. Estes Kefauver, was of course unknown.

BUT THERE were those in the party who felt the management four years hence might turn toward someone who had successfully bucked the Ike tide.

In this category is Michigan's Gov G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams, reelected for a fifth term. He's on the liberal side of the fence. On the conservative side, the Democrats have Gov Frank J. Lausche of Ohio, who defeated Sen. George Bender (R) to give his party the thin edge which it will control the Senate.

In the Middle East, this will be interesting.

BRITISH AND French paratroopers swarmed into the Suez Canal area, carrying out the decision to force an end to the fighting between Egypt and Israel.

Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin warned Britain and France they might face the threat of attack "by so stronger power" if they persisted in their military activities.

Bulganin proposed to Eisenhower that the U. S. and Russia act jointly, with naval and air power, to end the hostilities in the Middle East. The U. S. quickly rejected the Soviet suggestion.

THE UNITED Nations General Assembly moved to create an international force to keep peace in the Middle East until the Israeli conflict and Suez Canal dispute are settled. Britain and France declared cease-fire when their troops captured half the Suez Canal zone—enough, they have announced, to fulfill their object of restoring international control over the waterway when Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser seized last summer.

But the shooting did not cease. Sporadic action continued between Egyptian soldiers and occupation forces.

IN WASHINGTON, Eisenhower acted swiftly after a behind-the-conference with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles by recovering from an operation for removal of a cancerous growth from his intestine. The President, besides assuming Senate and House leaders to a White House conference Thursday, to these sessions with an urgent message to Israel's Premier, David Ben Gurion, asking him to comply with United Nations resolution calling for withdrawal of invading Egyptian territory they invaded last month. Ben-Gurion agreed.

HE HAS APPROVED Defense Department orders which place U. S. Sixth Fleet atomic bomber command on a "readiness" basis to meet any "eventuality," and has massed powerful naval task forces for possible combat operations.

There was new hope for peace but not indication that the grim Middle East problem would be quickly resolved.

In tragedy-shrouded Hungary, Soviet troops crushed the flame for freedom which patriots seeking to shatter the yoke of Communist tyranny had waged against insurmountable odds.

Enjoyment . . .

Dear Editor,

A feature which added to my enjoyment of Monday night's lyceum was the introduction of short program notes. The few dollars additional printing costs, I feel, were well spent for the musical education of those like myself who need the enlightenment.

The program notes and the concert-hall atmosphere of the Smith Auditorium represented a great improvement over our last lyceum artist's struggle with fieldhouse acoustics.

(I'm) hoping these will remain permanent features of a potentially outstanding lyceum series.

What's Humor . . .

Dear Editor,

What does humor mean? I thought I was quite familiar with the word and was able to recognize humor until I saw the homecoming Parade Saturday. The dictionary says that humor is the quality of being funny or the faculty of perceiving what is amusing or comical. It isn't the truth, that's what I thought it meant also.

Why have a humorous divison in the parade if humor doesn't enter into the judging of the floats?

If something is humorous people laugh at it, and the funniest it is the harder people laugh. With such obvious reaction it shouldn't be too difficult for someone to distinguish the difference between something that is humorous and something that isn't.

Every humorous float in the parade received more reaction than the one that was given the award.

Of course, the hundreds of people who were watching the parade could have wrong senses of humor, and couldn't have recognized the subtleties of the winning float, and were just laughing at the others to keep warm.

It's too bad that some of the floats like the Gadianton Band, the Rodeo Club, The Universe and Press Club and Stalag 161 were so mixed up when they entered the parade thinking that they might be humorous. Better luck next year.

1,000 Words? . . .

Dear Editor,

After having just completed two years in the mission field, I returned to the BYU, and noticed many changes. Now that raid-terms are past, I would like to comment on the most noticeable change. Therefore, I am submitting the following drawing as the only comment left.

It's like I told you, Elder, this school just isn't the same as it was two years ago.

after taking my exams. The drawing, and not the letter, is my "letter to the editor."

No Opposition . . .

Dear Editor,

I wish that I have nothing to say in opposition to anything which has been previously negated by some frantic, frenzied student. I read the Daily University "Safety Valve" with interest.

I felt it necessary that something be said about the game October 6. I have sat many times in cold weather watching the team play with hope that they would win (need not say how many times I hoped in vain.

I was very cold last Saturday just as I had been before. It was different this time. I wouldn't have left, regardless, because I was being entertained very well.

It was something different than just staying around hoping for a win. I was being entertained by some good football, not just the BYU team for the conference. I cannot rightfully proclaim my reason for the suddenness of the win. I don't know if this factor will last.

I honestly say, I think so. I am not a writer of words, but I wanted the writers to know that I, just a common spectator, was sincerely thrilled at the outcome of the game. Thanks a million for more of the same, regardless of the opposition.

(Ed. Note: No name is used on this letter because it seems to be typical of studentbody opinions.)

Archaeology Classes Excavate Indian Relics Near Provo

by Verland Whipple

ABOUT 1,000 years ago, a prehistoric Indian village took up housekeeping a few miles west of Provo on the bench of what was then the Provo River bed.

Today, among the remains of the Indians' graves, willow and mud huts, and eating vessels are supplying practical experience to a Brigham Young University archaeology class taught by Dr. Ross Christensen.

So far, the class has uncovered about 15 adult skeletons, different floors levels, crockery, a complete handle from a drinking vessel, and fingerprints on pieces of burned hard mud.

DR. CHRISTENSEN pointed out several arrowheads uncovered on various floor levels, and noted the expert workmanship that went into the making of them.

The area in which the class is working is located about two miles west of Provo At one time this was the frontier for the Pueblo Indian tribes of Now Mexico and Arizona

The area was discovered several years ago by Dr. Christensen who excavated a mound in the same area The mounds are visible from the air as is the old path of the Provo River

MOUNDS ARE built up through the years when one tribe moves into the same location that was occupied earlier by another tribe. Trash, dirt heaps and building foundations accumulate to form a mound.

In places where several tribes have lived on the same ground, archeologists can trace a culture down through iron, bronze and stone ages by taking samples from each floor level.

Philharmonic Members Praise 'Friendliest Place On Tour'

by Nadine Hall
Daily Universe Writer

"This is the most friendly place we have visited while touring your country," said three members of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra when interviewed before the concert Thursday

Horst Rosenberg, Ginter Prill and Frederick Thomas, all remarked that although they had not been here long enough to see the campus, they received a gracious reception and enjoyed a delicious meal in a magnificent hall

"The United States is the greatest wonder we have ever seen," commented Rosenberg. "The massiveness of everything and the high standard of living is amazing," he said

The artists remarked that Niagara Falls, Empire State Building and the Mormon Tabernacle pipe organ were the three objects of most interest to them on their tour.

The said also that the architecture and food was very different from that of their country.

"We were impressed with the LDS temple and enjoyed performing in the tabernacle with its marvelous acoustics," commented the performers.

According to the symphony members, they were pleased to play at universities where young people showed such great interest. They said that the American people were very appreciative of good music.

Class to Study Actual Cases In Businesses

NEW ON CAMPUS this year the Department of Industrial Management of the College of Commerce has grown out of the former Department of Business Management and has functioned for the past five years

Prof R. L. Smith, head of the new department, outlined its purpose and distinctive features in saying, "We are trying to bridge the gap between engineering and business by combining technical engineering with administrative and business concepts"

HE ADDED that a distinctive feature of the program is the use of the "case method" of instruction in all courses. In the "case method," actual business situations are brought into the classrooms and studied

Students entering the school first take an introductory course exploring the whole field of Industrial Organization and Management Their next course covers the same material from the point of view of an operating manager meeting his day to day problems

LATER, IF a student desires, he registers for intensive study of a specific area of the industrial organization

On completing the program, students are qualified for positions of responsibility in industry They are also equipped with the necessary personal qualities for advancement in their work

Courses in Industrial Management are taught by Professor R. L. Smith and Instructor Lyman Wilson.

Denver Runs Up Lead Early; Coasts to Win

by Jerry Cunningham

A STORMY second half saw Brigham Young University out score Denver 34-13 after the Pioneers pulverized the Cougars in the first two frames by 45 counts Final: Denver 58, BYU 34

The Cougars fought back from a 58 deficit to score five straight touchdowns against the Pioneers

THE COUGARS went to the locker rooms at intermission with a minus 22-yards on the ground, a minus 17-yards by passing for a total of 39 yards in the red.

But they bounced back late in the third, completing 5 of 10 passes which netted them the five straight TD's. But overall the Cougars completed just 11 of 34 passes—a far cry from previous performances.

FOLLOWING close on the heels of their masterful 33-12 snow-swept victory over New Mexico, the Cougars, playing in optimum weather, were less than inept through the first three quarters against the hard-charging Denver line.

BYU kicked off to Denver and immediately recovered a fumble on the 39-yard line. Three plays later the Pioneers pushed on a Cougar fumble. BYU made a creditable goal-line stand until George Colbert, left halfback, pitched to Ernie Pitts in the end zone. This was the beginning of the end for BYU.

DENVER WENT on to rack up more first-half points than BYU has scored all year, up to the New Mexico game.

Then the Cougars came back and racked up more points in the second half than they had all year, up to the New Mexico game.

By the fourth period much of the sparse Homecoming crowd had gone home, but those that stayed saw BYU put on an awesome demonstration.

Carroll Johnson started the BYU spurt by flipping to Paul Caldwell on the 24 and the big, Cougar end fought his way into the end zone for the first Cougar score, 58-7.

BYU HELD Denver on downs. Don Dixon threw 20 yards to Weldon Jackson to the 50. Two personal fouls against Denver put the ball on the 26. Dixon to Paul Brown set up the second Cougar score from the one, 58-13.

BYU nabbed a fumble on the DU 32, passed to the 11 and Steve Campora plunged over, 58-20.

PAUL BROWN then blocked a Denver punt and Campora scored the third Cat talley, 58-27, and this isn't the end of the story.

Tom Clark then nailed DU's quarterback on the Pioneer three-yard line. Denver punted deep from their end zone to the 37.

Dick Ralph hauled in a pass on the 10 and Caldwell nabbed an aerial in the end zone with seconds left in the game, 58-34.
